FISHERMAN FINDS BODY IN WATER; WRISTS TIED

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—The body of an unidentified man was found floating in the inner harbor at San Pedro today by a fisherman. His hands were tied together with a hand cord and the skull was fractured in two places. The body was found with a 40-foot line tied to his wrist. The body is that of a man, about 40 years old, six feet in height, dark and weighed about 150 pounds. The clothing was of excellent quality, such as is worn by clerical men. A black overcoat had been taken off the body, and a light-colored shirt was in the water about it.

A copy of the Christian Science Monitor dated April 11 and 12 and of a reading room in the city of Los Angeles, the body was found. The body was found in the water about 100 feet from the shore. ## SENATE SWAMPED; NO DATE SET TO ADJOURN

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(Continued from page 1.)—The Progressive Republican senators insist that after so many months of discussion there should be important legislative achievements on the tariff and other things. Regular Republican senators are bringing the tariff bills out of the finance committee but are considering abstaining themselves upon the vote so that the president may have the advantage of voting straight Democratic tariff measures.

The Democrats have agreed to press on the tariff bills including the excise tax to a vote but have not passed on further toward adjournment. All efforts to map out a program for adjournment before the national party conventions have so far failed in the senate.

The house virtually has cleared its decks. The struggle is confessed so that such men as Vice President Sherman, Senator Charles McNary, Republican leaders Gallinger, Smoot, Hiram and Warren among the members of the senate steering committee. Senator Dillingham head of the special committee investigating committee, Senator Crane and others have no expectations of congress getting away until after June.

"Adjournment," repeated Vice President Sherman, when asked "About the first part of August?"

It was said that if the senate did not adjourn before the conventions, the house would refuse to recess over the convention period. Opposition to a recess also has developed among senators.

The majority and minority reports of the Senate in committee which investigated the election of Senator Lorimer finally will be presented to the senate tomorrow. The majority sustains Lorimer and the minority declares his election invalid. No date for a vote has been fixed.

Senator Clark of Wyoming, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, expects congress to act promptly on the plan to amend the constitution to have presidents and vice presidents serve a single term of six years. This committee tomorrow doubtless will favorably report such a report. Ratification by the state legislatures would be necessary and it would not affect present presidential candidates. The committee also is considering a bill to advance the presidential inauguration to follow closely the election.

Steel tariff speechmaking including an argument for two days by Senator Smoot, will be a feature this week in the senate. Action on the Panama canal administration bill and debate on the naval appropriation bill will occupy the house. The house judiciary committee will resume the investigation of Judge Archbald of the commerce court, continuing all week. The senate may confirm Richard E. Sloan as United States district judge for Arizona, now under attack by the two Arizona senators.

Rebel Retreat Halts Expected Battle at Rellano; Federals Threaten Juarez

EL PASO, TEX., May 19.—A northward retreat of the Mexican rebels today in the face of the slowly advancing federal army removed by at least two days the expected engagement in the vicinity of Rellano.

Advices from the rebel front at Escalon today stated that the insurgents were falling back on their stronghold at Rellano, 11 miles north, burning bridges behind them and overhauling the advance of the federal forces. Rellano is admittedly the best fortified place from a rebel viewpoint.

Federal officials admitted that no fighting was likely for another 24 hours on account of the retreat of the rebels. The positions of the two armies were relatively unchanged to date except that the main columns of the federalists moved up closer to the campaign at Escalon, the first station south of Escalon. The rebels embarked orderly in troop trains at Escalon early today and it is expected that they will peacefully enter Escalon during the night of tomorrow.

Juarez Garrison Reinforced.
Road leaders at Juarez are awake to the maneuvers of the federalists in this vicinity, which have for their object the taking of the Mexican town across the Rio Grande from here.

The Juarez garrison is rapidly being reinforced by troops from the south. It is reported that General Salazar who first took the town for the rebels and then went south to aid General Dyer has been ordered back to take charge of the defense of Juarez. Though Salazar is familiar with Juarez, it is not believed that he will be asked away from the main columns at this time.

The federal columns which are supposed to be threatening Juarez, advanced on a set today. Major Salazar who commands the federalists near Juarez is out on a scouting party. On May 19, he was within 20 miles of Juarez.

It is not believed that the federalists will advance on Juarez until the columns coming from Palomas, opposite Columbus, N. M. arrive to form a junction with them behind Juarez. It is probable that the two forces will meet at about the same time the main engine meet in the south.

The rebel leaders continue to claim that some of their forces are far south behind Toron, harassing the rear of the federal army. Both sides are forming small detachments at the rear. Both sides are however that further developments behind both armies are dependent on the outcome of the main engagement between General Huerfano of the government troops and General Orozco, which probably will be fought at Rellano.

DALLAS, Tex., May 19.—That Mexican rebel troops numbering about 500 are advancing on Juarez and that the rebels there and at Chihuahua intend to provoke the American intervention in the event Orozco is defeated in the battle now going on below Chihuahua, was the tenor of a dispatch received here today by General Huerfano, who is here from Adjutant General Hutchins.

Governor Colquhoun instructed the adjutant general to proceed at once to El Paso. He said he would notify the president that the people of El Paso must not be placed in danger by combatants on the other side of the Rio Grande.

MISS CATHERINE WETMORE.
who is suing Rev. George H. Houghton Butler for $10,000 damages, alleging that he forcibly ejected her from the church of which he was pastor at Yonkers, N. Y. Butler recently resigned the pastorate, which he had held for 16 years, his action being the result of an ever increasing unpopularity against him, fostered by some of his former women parishioners, among them Miss Wetmore, who alleges she was ejected from his church because of her antagonism.

DESPONDENT, GERMAN NOBLEMAN ENDS LIFE

Dies Holding Photograph of Society Woman Whom He Wished to Marry

CHICAGO, May 19.—Henry Spruck von Armenthal, member of the German nobility and large land owner in Oregon, Washington and Idaho, shot and killed himself in his room today. Hotel attaches who found the body discovered a revolver in von Armenthal's right hand and a photograph of Mrs. Francis Rosenblatt, piece of the late Nelson Morris, millionaire packer, in the other.

Von Armenthal left a note in which he said his despondency was due to drink and the fact that he had lost "the finest woman in the world" because of his drinking. He also directed that his lawyer in Seattle and his older brother, Philip Spruck, Baron Semms Sanback von Armenthal, of Hesse, Darmstadt, Germany, should dispose of his large estate.

The romance terminated by von Armenthal's death is said to have originated at a Los Angeles hotel two years ago. Attorney Walter D. Jones of Chicago identified Mrs. Rosenblatt's picture and told the police of von Armenthal's love for her. Although von Armenthal is believed by the police to have killed himself early today, the body was not discovered until midnight.

The note contained the following: "I send my latest will to my lawyers in Seattle, directing them that my older brother shall own or dispose of all my property in the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho for his own personal benefit, with the exception of some property which I have especially mentioned to be made over to a poor working boy of this city, who has done me within the last few days a great service."

Attorney Jones said von Armenthal and Mrs. Rosenblatt were engaged to marry shortly after their first meeting in Los Angeles.

"Chaperoned by relatives," said Mr. Jones, "Mrs. Rosenblatt traveled through the west with von Armenthal. The wedding date was set for last June and von Armenthal had arranged to present Mrs. Rosenblatt with $50,000 as a wedding gift. Then came trouble because of von Armenthal's drinking and the match was broken."

After there was a partial reconciliation, von Armenthal accompanied Mrs. Rosenblatt on a trip to Atlanta, Ga., to visit her son there. He returned from Atlanta about three weeks ago and from that time until his death drank heavily.

Although she is believed to be in Chicago, Mrs. Rosenblatt could not be found tonight. Her sister, Mrs. Jeanette E. Jones, said that Mrs. Rosenblatt had declared that the marriage with von Armenthal was impossible unless he stopped drinking and that the engagement had been broken solely for that reason.

Mrs. Rosenblatt for several years resided in New York where her late husband, Benjamin Rosenblatt, was a wealthy leather manufacturer.

of social work, which make for a better society. There is work to do outside the church, and it is God's work. The church and the social work should not be things apart. The true church of Christ and social service are inseparably yoked. The man who stands for social salvation and individual salvation are on the same platform, and every man should have a combination of the two. The church will fulfill its mission in the plan of individual and social salvation.

Dr. William F. Slocum, who was a visitor to the New York Conservation congress, gave a report of his experiences there in an address at the First Baptist church. He told of the impression that the news of the sinking of the Titanic had upon the conference. William Stead, who was to speak at the convention, was lost on that vessel, which cast a gloom over the whole convention. Dr. Slocum spoke of the tributes paid to Jane Addams and Washington Gladden at the meeting.

Other addresses.

The Rev. E. B. Pratt of this city spoke on "Evangelism," at the Ashbury Methodist church, and G. S. Bilheimer of Denver, on "Evangelism," at the First Christian church and the Methodist church, South. The Rev. Robert P. Carson of Mantou addressed a meeting at the First United Presbyterian church, on "The New York Conservation Congress," giving much the same matter as Dr. Slocum, since both were visitors at the conference. Harold Moore spoke on "Missions," at the First Congregational church.

It is especially desired that all men of the city who can do so, whether members of any church or not, or regardless of whether or not they have attended any of the meetings, be present at the dinner tonight at 6:30 o'clock, at the First Presbyterian church. In order that they may be prepared for it, it is requested that all who will be present send their names to the Y. M. C. A. by 8 o'clock this morning. The theme of the addresses will be "The New York Conservation Congress."

The program for today follows:

QUESTIONED BY I. W. W.

San Diego Officials Recommend That California's Attorney General Take Charge of the Situation.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 19.—City and county officials talked here today about the report made by Col. Harris Weinstein to "Governor Hiram W. Johnson, as to conditions here surrounding the fight being waged by Industrial Workers of the World against the San Diego restricted public-speaking ordinance. The report was that the Industrial Workers were warring and were not to be deterred."

It was recommended that the attorney general of California take charge of the situation. Half a dozen officials, seen in the course of the day, seemed to agree in pointing out:

That Colonel Weinstein, as special commissioner sent by the governor, had no authority to administer the oath in taking testimony, and did not do so.

That the only persons heard at his inquiry were those who had been arrested for violation of the ordinance, or who, local authorities said, today, had added such violations.

That the commissioner did not examine transcripts of evidence before the grand jury, or the strength of which 32 men have been indicted on charges of assault to murder, and assault with deadly weapons.

That he was told of threats against the lives of the mayor, his family and the life of the chief of police.

Trouble Dates Back Four Years.

Officials also asserted that rifles with silencers had been imported here. The Weinstein report said none of the men arrested in the course of the disturbance had been found wearing arms.

Local officials said today that the present trouble runs back nearly four years. They asserted that the speeches were in violent disrespect to the American flag, the nation, the state and city authorities, that these were told that they were the actual owners of property, were advised to take what they wanted, and to kill police officers if any sought to prevent them.

Thus far arrests have been made by hundreds, the authorities admit; jails of neighboring counties have been called upon to imprison the overflow from San Diego county jail, two policemen were shot and seriously wounded. An Industrial Worker was killed in this fight.

A plea by Attorney Fred H. Moore, counsel for some of the Industrial Workers, that citations for contempt be issued against alleged "vigilantes" will be heard in the superior court here tomorrow. Moore asserts that on Saturday he was unlawfully detained by the police, and was told by a committee of 15 citizens that it would be best for him to leave the city or drop the cases. This he holds to be a violation of the dignity of the court.

SECOND WEEK IN DARROW CASE WILL BEGIN TODAY

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—The second week of the trial of Clarence S. Darrow, the Chicago attorney, for jury bribing, will begin here tomorrow afternoon with 16 sworn jurors in the box. A morning session of court was found impossible because of the necessity of summoning a special venire of 10 talesmen, with which to complete the panel. It looked today as if introduction of evidence might begin Tuesday morning.

Every talesman thus far has been asked by counsel for the state if he would allow a personal appeal by Darrow to influence him. Darrow is counsel of record, as well as defendant in the case, and probably will make a speech in his own behalf before the trial is over.

Three peremptory challenges are left to the prosecution and five to the defense.

BABE RECEIVES BULLET INTENDED FOR MOTHER

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 19.—Mrs. D. P. Cooper, victim of an attempted assault early this morning in her home here tonight because her 2-months-old baby, lying on her breast, caught in it one of the bullets fired at her by her baffled assailant. The baby died instantly.

This city has been terrorized lately by attempted assaults on women, committed it is believed, by a mysterious person, whom the police call "Jack the Shooter."

This afternoon, Mayor Taylor issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens of Little Rock to arm themselves and aid the police in capturing or killing the prowler.

FIGHT IS EXPECTED AT M. E. CONVENTION

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 19.—That a question of sentiment may precipitate a fight on the floor of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church here is the declaration of the committee on revision to be presented tomorrow, in which the majority advocate the changing of the name "district superintendent" to "presiding elder." A minority report also will be made.

AUTO PLUNGED INTO RIVER; FIVE DROWNED

CHICAGO, May 20.—Two men and three women were drowned in the Calumet river early this morning when an automobile which they occupied plunged into an open draw. A watchman made a futile attempt to stop the car as it sped toward the river. None of the bodies have been recovered and the names of the victims are unknown to the police.

AMATEUR BALLOONIST FALLS AND IS KILLED

NAHANT, Mass., May 19.—James Barr, Jr., 29 years old, a Lynn novice, was killed today in attempting a parachute drop from a balloon at a height of 1,000 feet. He was unable to make the parachute open, although he clawed frantically at the tangled cloth and strings in his rapid descent. Two thousand persons witnessed the accident, among them two sisters of the young man.

BUSINESS LIFE WERE TOO GREAT

Strain of Constant Confinement Had Ill Effect on Health

Mr. George I. Dodge, a shoe salesman at the Union Shoe Company, 109 South Weber Street, made the following statement recently in connection with "Tona Vita," the medicine that is now being introduced with great success in Colorado Springs.

Mr. Dodge said "I suffered with stomach trouble and a run-down condition. I always had that tired feeling due to close confinement in my business life. I have used about a half bottle of Tona Vita and have obtained great relief from the above conditions. I think it one of the best remedies I ever used, and will recommend it to anyone in similar condition."

The specialists who are introducing Tona Vita in Colorado Springs are giving demonstrations of what the medicine will do in five minutes, and the Colorado Springs public are flocking to the store where they are located. One of the specialists said that "Tona Vita" will break all records in this country. People are just beginning to realize what a great preparation it is. Thousands upon thousands in this and other large cities are afflicted with general debility. The entire system becomes affected in such cases and nervousness, stomach trouble, headache, backache, despondency and loss of vitality result. "Tona Vita" will work wonders in such cases in a remarkably short time.

"We have predicted all along that every man or woman affected with nervous debility, who would give 'Tona Vita' a fair test, would become a walking advertisement for our remedy; and judging from the results in Colorado Springs, we are correct," said one of the specialists. "Anyone," continued he, "who has been a constant sufferer from debility is sure to tell about it when he finds something that will give him genuine relief."

Enthusiasm continues to prevail generally where the new product called "Tona Vita" has been used. The great amount of good which seems to have accomplished is the cause of considerable comment by those who have seen its wonderful work. Case after case of persons who were comparatively nervous wrecks and had been sufferers from stomach trouble for years has been reported, and the results of "Tona Vita" are said to have been astonishing in nearly every instance.

The public do not recognize the symptoms of this modern malady and it would be well for as many as can to visit the Robinson Drug Company, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 8 p. m. this week, and have the specialists explain these symptoms, as well as the nature of the remedy.

CORPORATE EARNINGS SHOW BIG DECREASE

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Corporate earnings in the United States decreased $175,500,000 in 1911. That figure represents the comparative loss in net earnings as reported to Royal E. Cabell, commissioner of internal revenue for making assessment under the corporation excise tax law. In a statement Mr. Cabell says the returns indicate poorer business conditions last year than in 1910 particularly in iron steel and certain manufacturing industries.

New Mexico will be known as the "Sunshine state" and Arizona as the "Valentine state."

MRS. HAROLD F. MCCORMICK

Mrs. Harold F. McCormick, daughter of John L. Rockefeller, and one of Chicago's most active club women, has started a crusade against the sale of intoxicating liquors by clubs composed of both men and women. "I had my way there would be no public drinking on the part of women," says Mrs. McCormick. "I don't at all approve of it. In private homes it is not so bad."

VICTORIOUS CHRIST HEADS PROCESSION

BOSTON, Mass., May 19.—Pastor Russell spoke here today in the Boston theater. In one of his two discourses he used the following as his text: "When he ascended up on high he led a multitude of captives."—Ephesians iv, 8.

This grand expression respecting the glorious outcome of the Savior's work is quoted by the Apostle Paul from the Psalms. (Psalm lxxviii, 18.) The figure thus thrust before our mental eye is that of a great conqueror whose victory is being heralded. With the Romans we know that it was a custom that, generals returning from various wars were granted what were termed "triumphs"—that is to say, triumphal processions.

Thus, for instance, Titus, returning from the war upon the Jews in A. D. 70, brought with him certain notable persons, and the golden candlestick from the temple, and these were displayed to the eyes of the people following the conqueror. They were subsequently captured on the Arch of Titus, still standing in Rome. And evidently the custom was still older than the days of the Romans, since it was prophetically set forth by the Prophet David.

Let us permit our mortal eye to feast upon the scene presented in our text. Jesus, in fulfillment of the divine program, had left the heavenly condition and descended to earth, taking a bondman's form or nature in order "that he, by the grace of God, might taste death for every man." In order that he might rescue Adam and his race from the dying and death condition in which they were under divine sentence and under the power of Satan.

Therefore, the Redeemer counted not his life precious to him, but freely delivered himself up for our offenses and died, "the just for the unjust," that he might bring mankind back into harmony with God. His humiliation ended in death but his triumph began when, as is recorded, God raised him from the dead by his own power, and set him at the right hand of his own majesty—"far above angels, principalities and powers and every name that is named."

Between business and politics have been tempting in this young state. Vast natural resources have lain open inviting private exploitation. Franchises and charters of enormous potential value have been added temptations as population and the social demands arising from the increasing numbers grew. Able men as individuals and in associations, acting in accordance with the spirit of their day and environment, unwatched by public opinion, have organized systematically and seized and appropriated these now immensely valuable properties and franchises. These men and corporations did away with the supremacy of laws and law officers by also organizing and appropriating the entire machinery of state government throughout every department and including party organization. It is these gentlemen and their successors who are responsible for the great improvements now necessary to curb their threatening attitude toward our political institutions. They must bear the responsibility for the rapid changes already made and other changes pending which are to still more profoundly affect the political institutions of the state. It is these men who have made necessary the initiative and referendum. It is these men who have made certain the recall of elective officers, including judges.

Blame Lies on These Men. It is they, men who have threaten to make of it an impotent shadow of what our fathers intended. It is these men who have impoverished the public service of the state by expending and excluding from chance for honorable public service, independent-minded men. It is these men who have made the honor of men a commodity of common traffic, and at times have even made the state a market place where loyalty to office and the welfare of the state have been exchanged for a servile, cringing dependency to private masters. It is these men who have made the Republican party when entrusted with power a party of puppet men, enacting puppet laws. It is these men who by their sinister pervading power, have kept our state laws in the back eddies of a frontier age and ignored the need for progressive legislation with which enlightened states are meeting changed social and economic conditions.

It is our first duty as Republicans in the fight ahead to drive these men from the state. If we fail to do so, if we are given up to permanently bar them out of the state by certain statutory enactments directly formulated to that end, in this connection we propose:

- Proposes Reforms.
1. An amendment to the present primary law by which party assemblies or conventions shall be abolished.
  2. A stringent, comprehensive, corrupt practices act.
  3. The nonpartisan election of all judges, candidates for these judicial offices to appear on the ballot without party designation and their election to occur at times independent of other political campaigns. We have failed to obtain high ideals of character, equipment and independence in judicial offices. It is a gain toward better conditions if two weeks of this first step and force an individual public attention at the time of selection of judges and free these officials from party allegiance and natural party obligations.
  4. A public utilities commission, vested with comprehensive powers to regulate public service and transportation corporations, included among which should be:
    - (a) The power to limit capitalization of bonded indebtedness.
    - (b) Power to regulate rates and service.
    - (c) Power to prohibit passes, franchises and all gratuities.
  5. The recall of all elective officials and the recall of important commissions who have been appointed.
  6. A presidential preference primary law.
  7. The reappointment of legislative districts in the state, based upon an equitable distribution of population.
  8. Another subject, urgently demanded, is the settlement of the question of injuries and death suffered by workmen in their employment. Existing conditions with regard to employers' liability and compensation for workmen's injuries are so unjust that they should be remedial action. Theodore Roosevelt aptly states the case, as follows:

Quotes Roosevelt.

"In what is called the employers' liability legislation, other industrial countries have adopted the principle that the industries must bear the monetary burden of their human sacrifices, and that the employee injured shall have a fixed and definite sum."

Proper legislation directed to this result should be enacted. Finally, it is imperative that we make a determined effort to secure a legislature. In both branches, which shall approve the spirit of the program above outlined. A governor can do more than recommend and watch vigilantly the course and tendencies of legislation and urge with what force he can a fulfillment of party pledges. The legislature is after all the law-making body. Its unswerving and undivided honest allegiance to the welfare of all the people is necessary to a successful outcome of proposals as important and far-reaching as those we have in mind. This duty is above partisanship. If the people of Colorado approve the platform above set out, if they sufficiently confide in my good faith and capacity to do my part in carrying out these policies, if they will make it one of their fixed purpose in each locality to send men of integrity and capacity, who will above all represent themselves in service for the public, I promise, in cooperation with such a body of men to press on until we have turned this furrow to its very end and leave in the history of the state a record of progressive legislation upon which the future may build some small, added measure of prosperity and peace.

REX BRACH'S "GOING SOME"

AT OPERA HOUSE THIS WEEK

Opening tonight the second week of summer stock at the opera house, James Hawley and Charles Players will be seen in one of the funniest comedies ever written, "Going Some," by Rex Brach and Paul Armstrong. This will be the first time since Brach has been seen in the city. Right here let it be said that among the many comedies now being presented on the American stage, none has met with a greater success than this popular comedy. It is a comedy of the highest order, and it is a comedy of the highest order. It is a comedy of the highest order, and it is a comedy of the highest order.

SELECTION OF CHAIRMAN LEFT TO HARRY S. NEW

CRIC, May 19.—Harry S. New, chairman of the subcommittee on arrangements for the Republican national convention, in an interview, tonight, said nothing further had been done regarding naming a temporary chairman. Yesterday, the subcommittee adjourned. Yesterday, it was announced the selection had been left to Mr. New.

"I was busy dictating telegrams and letters regarding other matters connected with the convention," said Mr. New. "and nothing was done as to the temporary chairmanship. I will have an announcement to make tonight."

There was speculation by politicians today, and rumors were heard at the headquarters of the committee. None of the rumors, however, could be verified, as Chairman New and Secretary Hayward refused to discuss them.

Margaret Illington, in Charles Kenyon's gripping play, "Kindling," under the management of Edward J. Bowen, will be the attraction at the opera house, Saturday, May 26.

Miss Illington's success in this play is said to be something unusual. From parts in which she appeared beautifully dressed, and with elaborate surroundings, she has returned to the stage after three years' retirement in a role demanding nothing better than to wear a $4 dress and a $10 suit. Therefore, the more credit to this really wonderful actress, whose personality counteracts all else that go to make a successful star, all else save her great art.

The story of "Kindling" is unique.

Iron and Steel

NEW YORK, May 19. The action of the market for stocks last week made it evident that control had been relaxed by the organization which has stood in support of the stability of prices during the recent speculative campaign. The always watchful professional trading element, through its constant testing operations, demonstrated that protective measures had been withdrawn, leaving the market vulnerable to bear attack and to attempted profit taking.

Movements of individuals credited with the conduct of the late campaign, implying coming absence from the financial district were read as confirmation that their operations had reached a turn. Signs that support had been withdrawn aroused the fears of belated followers of the speculation, who found themselves burdened with holdings, and their efforts to carry on the campaign were complicated by their anxiety to realize profits. The speculative tone also was affected by the suspicion aroused by the aggressive holding up of obscure stocks.

Current speculation in the stock market suggested a distribution of holdings at the higher price levels had preceded this campaign in the conduct of the market leadership and had supplied the principal motive for that change. It also was assumed that there was involved a reconsideration of the earlier disposition to ignore the progress of a presidential campaign and its traditional repressive influence.

The controversial heat developed in the canvass has awakened doubts over the outcome and corresponding hesitation in assuming conditions to come. Reports from the steel trade strengthened the conviction of expansion and improvement. Demands from manufacturers for long periods for delivery and premiums for earlier deliveries of crude steel were considered promising symptoms.

The material fortnightly reduction in the European supply of copper, with reports of large buying by the principal domestic consumers, gave an upward impetus to the price of that metal, the highest of the present movement. Parallel advances in silver and white lead spread these influences all through the metal industry.

Recent liquidation in the wheat market was taken to mean that the worst in the crop prospect had been discounted in the speculation. It did not escape comment, however, that the impairment of the early hopes of the wheat crop had been little noticed in the period of advancing prices of stocks. Bad weather obstacles to corn and cotton planting and the possibility of reduced acreage in spring wheat also enter into the estimation of the future.

The April 18 returns of the national banks to the controller of the currency indicate a large transfer of reserves from central reserve centers since the last call, and a corresponding loan expansion. Such a movement is indicative of commercial expansion and revival.

RAILROAD ADVERTISING

THE most valuable advertising that Colorado, and especially Colorado Springs, receives in the East is that done by the railroads. The local Chamber of Commerce spends several thousand dollars yearly to exploit the advantages of this region as a health and pleasure resort, but its efforts are necessarily limited by want of the large funds without which a thoroughly adequate advertising campaign cannot be conducted. There are three or four transcontinental lines each of which spends as much money annually to advertise Colorado as is spent by the Chamber of Commerce, and since the Pike's Peak region is usually given the most prominent place in this advertising it is easy to see how valuable such publicity is to our interests.

The Rock Island, the Santa Fe, the Burlington and the Union Pacific are especially lavish in their advertising expenditures throughout the Middle West. Every summer they run large display advertisements in the newspapers of Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha and other cities from whence our tourist patronage is largely derived, calling attention to the advantages of this region as a cool summer retreat.

CONVINCING ADS FOR "COOL COLORADO."

The Burlington is now conducting a novel advertising campaign in a list of twenty or more newspapers in the large eastern cities. The advertisements are "readers" three or four inches long, setting forth in a few striking phrases the superior advantages of Colorado as a vacation resort. For instance, "Colorado has scores of mountain peaks for any one of which Europe would give a million dollars." This sort of publicity is certain to make an impression on the reader, and just now it is being read by hundreds of thousands of people throughout the East.

Another convincing advertisement that has come to our attention is being used by the Union Pacific in Eastern cities. It is a three-column, illustrated display in which the growth of Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska is set forth. "Ten Years of Steady Agricultural Growth" is the caption, followed by the statement that "the farm property of Colorado has trebled in value in the last decade. $340,000,000 increase since 1900." Similar efforts to induce emigration to Colorado are put forth by all of the other railroads doing business in this state, especially the Denver & Rio Grande.

Colorado's prosperity depends largely on the volume of its tourist business, and this business is mostly created by advertising. The railroads pioneered this field and have habitually done more than anybody else to exploit the resources of the state. For this they deserve the thanks of every citizen interested in the upbuilding of Colorado.

THE NATIONAL LIQUOR BILL

A RECENT official publication gives the cost of alcoholic liquors consumed in the United States in 1911 as $1,568,470,511. This staggering sum is nearly twice the cost of the liquor used in the United Kingdom in the same period, despite the fact that the English figures for 1911 show an increase of about $25,000,000 over 1910.

The estimated value of the non-alcoholic stimulants used in America in 1911 is about one-sixth of the amount of the alcoholic liquors. A noteworthy feature of these statistics is the remarkable increase in the per capita consumption of beer. From 1871 to 1880 it was 8.79 gallons a year, but in 1911 it had risen to 20.66 gallons. This is a little more than the average per capita consumption of coffee, although there is a vast difference in the comparative values of the two beverages.

Such stupendous figures ought to arouse the interest of thoughtful people everywhere. Why should the average American drink two and one-half times as much beer as thirty years ago? It has been generally assumed that as a race Americans are not to be compared as beer drinkers with the Germans or the English, but the statistics tell a different story, and if the national appetite for beer increases in the future as it has in the past our per capita consumption will soon be far ahead of that of any other nation on earth. Another interesting fallacy that has been exploded is that the Germans and other foreigners in America drink more beer than the native population.

Doubtless it is a waste of time and space to point out the tremendous economic loss of this vast expenditure for liquor, for the conflict has been going on since the dawn of civilization and these statistics show that today more liquor is consumed than ever before. Nevertheless one cannot help speculating on the possible useful purposes to which such vast sums might be turned. The Panama Canal is the costliest project of its kind ever attempted by man, but it could be paid for nearly three times over with the money that the American people spend for alcoholic liquor in a single year. We bemoan the burden of militarism which necessitates the diversion of about 75 per cent of the revenues of the government to pay the cost of past wars and preparation for future wars. In other words this proportion of the national income is required for the maintenance of the army and navy and the pension system. But considered altogether it is less than one-fourth the amount of the national liquor bill for 1911.

There ought to be general recognition of the fact that the effort to control the liquor traffic by prohibitory law is a failure. It is folly to forbid the sale of a commodity the manufacture of which is licensed by the Government on such an extensive scale that the revenue thus produced constitutes the largest single source of income. Organized society has been attempting from the beginning to control the liquor problem by forbidding its sale. Society might well try the alternative method of forbidding its manufacture, and at the same time redouble its efforts to educate the public in a thorough understanding of the real significance of the liquor problem.

FROM OTHER PENS

THE BIGNESS CRAZE.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.
One of the features of the monster vessels which suggested itself at the time when the Titanic was supposed to be making its way in a crippled condition to port is, upon inquiry, verified. That was the doubt whether it she reached harbor either in Canada or the United States there was a drydock in North America in which she could be repaired.

It is now authoritatively stated that there is not only no drydock on this side of the ocean but that there is but one in the world where a vessel of that size could be docked. That is the port where she was built. Moreover, the entire group of the latest giants would, if they should reach port on this side so seriously damaged as to prevent their crossing the ocean, be valueless unless a drydock were built for their express accommodation.

This is one of the peculiar phases of the craze for big ships. Both on the ocean and on our lakes the builders of big ships go ahead and build them and then expect harbors, piers and docks to be made over for their benefit. This was done for the 20-foot draft vessels on the lakes. The demand that piers in New York be extended out into the North river for the accommodation of the monsters was respectfully declined. The discovery of the plight of these vessels would be in it she should reach port in America or Asia seriously damaged is a further example of this heedlessness.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR TIPS.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.
At one of the German spas the management, after long cogitation on the tipping evil, has resolved to try the experiment of abolishing gratuities from guests to waiters, bath attendants and other servants and instead itemizing them in the bill, collecting them in a lump from the departing visitor and distributing the aggregate pro rata among the help. Between 10 and 15 per cent added to the bill of each guest it is thought, would be about right, and the hope is expressed that the public will appreciate the new system and benefit by it.

But it would not, and to imagine that it would arouse an utter lack of knowledge of the tipping motive or habit as well as of human nature. There is a world of difference, for instance, from handing over money that you do not have to and being compelled to pay 10 or 15 per cent more on your bill. Men may more or less cheerfully give up to an individual waiter or servant either in the hope of obtaining better service or to avoid being considered "cheap," but the same men, if we are not very much mistaken, will put up the hardest kind of a kick against handing over the same amount under compulsion to a smiling cash desk.

THE HELP PROBLEM

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.
The commissioner of licenses, who has supervision of the employment agencies in New York, reports that at least 100,000 women could find employment in that city if they would go into domestic service. But they won't, preferring to work over in private shops for less than they could obtain in a private family. His analysis of this country wide attitude may be worth consideration, particularly by housekeepers who find the help problem an unending topic when two or three come together.

Every girl who works, he says, likes Sunday off, but Sunday is the day a servant must work hardest. Servants can have no callers. Their work never ends they have no freedom, no time of their own. Girls in factories can flock together at night, but a servant is always lonesome. The immigrant girl wants to be with her relatives as much as possible, and at least to spend her evenings with them. At domestic service she gets lonesome. Employers give no consideration to the social instincts of their servants, "believing servants have no business having social instincts." Household service is too manly and undignified. A girl may work anywhere else and call herself a lady, but in the household there is only one lady the employer. The servant is just a servant.

Fixed hours for a day's work and fixed hours off duty and treatment less as menials would, he thinks, solve the problem. Wages, he thinks, is not so important as conditions. The average employer may problem that the commissioner has looked at the problem from the servants' side only, and has taken no account of the trials and tribulations of the housewife, but, at least, he has made out a clear explanation of why domestic service is shunned and almost any other employment preferred. If his assertion that wages is not so important could be as clearly shown, perhaps the women who are now struggling with the help problem would be more eager to accept his suggestions.

The Wailing Place

By WALT MASON.

I look around on this world so gray, and size up its stock of sorrow. There's nothing worth while in sight today, nor promise of good tomorrow. I make a howl that would raise the dead and weep till the world is wetter, and all of the gallons of tears I shed don't seem to make things much better. This life's an expensive thing, I feel free to say, to anguish living, and when a man makes up his mind to die it costs a lot more than living. And brooding over mournful things like these has made me a chronic weeper, but all the gallons of brine I squeeze don't seem to make things much cheaper. I look around on my busy friends who toll with their spades and axes, and weep for them, when their labor ends their bundles will go for taxes. I moisten well with my scalding blime the path of the smith and sower, but all my stunts in the weeping line don't seem to make lives lower. I stand against when the sun is slight, and groan when the rain is pouring, and have bad dreams both day and night, and spend all my time deploring. I am chief grouch at the Wailing Place, the hot and the peerless kicker, and all the rivers that streak my face don't seem to make things run slicker.

What Culture Means

By RUTH CAMERON.

The other night I heard a young woman decline an invitation to a very noteworthy musical event. I don't really enjoy music," was her explanation. "You know my tastes are rather artistic than musical. If it were a good picture exhibition, I'd go a hundred miles to see it, but I simply don't care very much for music."

The young woman made this explanation with no air of shame or regret, on the contrary, she seemed rather proud of her misfortune.

Can you imagine a deaf man saying, with pride instead of regret, "No, I can't hear anything at all, but I can see splendidly?"

How absurd you say. Yes, I think so. And I also think it absurd for any man or woman to be content when eyes, or ears, or mind are closed and insensitive to vast possibilities of pleasure.

Just because you are fond of music, but do not appreciate art, is no reason you should consider art a closed world to you. To be sure, you were not born with a key to this kingdom of beauty in your possession, but just as soon as you grow to years of discretion, you can force one.

The well developed, really cultured person has eyes and ears and mind wide open to receive all the pleasure he can. That's what culture means—all-sided development. Instead of neglecting the less sensitive of his senses, he gives special effort to develop that one. If he does not naturally appreciate good music, he listens to it until he makes himself capable of receiving pleasure through that source. If he does not have a natural appreciation of good art, he makes determined efforts to develop that side of his nature.

I once knew a young girl who had a good literary and artistic sense, but absolutely no ear for music. And what do you think that girl bought with the first money she earned? Not books or pictures, but a piano. "I want to learn to play," she said. "I want to have music in my home and see if I can't cultivate that part of me."

If you do not appreciate music, listen to it all the more.

If you do not care for beautiful pictures, study them all the more thoroughly.

FIRST AID TO INJURED HEARTS

By Laura Jean Libbey

WARNED AGAINST MARRIAGE

(Copyright, 1912, by Laura Jean Libbey.)

It is usually the case that youth laughs at warnings, especially where marriage is concerned. Try to convince a young girl that her lover is unworthy of her and her obstinacy will be sure to crop out, exemplifying the words we know to be too true—A woman convinced against her will, is of the same opinion still. Most girls have faith in their lovers. This is pitiful enough when love is the magnet which sways the girl's judgment. But when she is lured by wealth into marrying a man who has seen too much of the seamy side of life and who has paid the price of his recklessness, she has only herself to blame if the marriage turns out disastrously.

If women had three or four lives at their disposal to live they might risk taking a chance against these sad prophecies. But where one has only one life to live and every passing year shortens it, the young woman who is wise will look well ere she enters into loveless matrimony. All of the gold in the world that he could pile at her feet is not worth the sacrifice and agony she must endure in after years. She looks backward and sees the girls she used to know, happy—and she is not. She realizes as never before that love only should be the motive of matrimony.

The maid of tender years who weds a middle-aged man for his bank account never knows the true meaning of the words, "marital bliss."

It is true that a girl should have some voice in her own love affair. There may be many who are envious when money bags are offered through marriage to a slip of a girl. But those who see impartially and advise against it should have much heed paid to their words. If love does not bind two hearts together marriage is a failure. The love of a young man, if he hadn't a cent in his pocket, but plenty of ambition mixed in his brains, would turn out better.

A young girl writes me as follows: "Dear Miss Libbey: I have two suitors, a nice young man of 22 and an old man 45. I like best the young man, but my folks are doing everything they can to make a match between the old man and me. What would you advise me to do—elope with the young man whom I really care for, or AGGIE?"

No, indeed, I do not advise you to elope. If the young man is in every way worthy of you and loves you, try patiently to gain your parents' consent to his wooing. They will not hold out much longer when they are satisfied that you are dear to each other.

ANSWERS

DOES SHE LOVE HIM?

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am a young man of 30, and am in love with a beautiful blonde stenographer in our office. I call her 'cutie' and she looks at me and always smiles. I think she loves me. How can I find out?"

"ANXIOUS"

You might ask her "I don't know how else you can find out. You can't tell by intuition."

IS HE ENGAGED?

"Dear Miss Libbey: There is a young man, about 22, who attends the same dancing class that I do, and I also have had occasion to be in his company, with others, several times, but I never have gone out with him anywhere until about a week ago when he asked to accompany me to a party and I accepted. Now he has been keeping company with a young lady who lives a few miles from here and has gone to see her every Sunday up until the last couple of Sundays. Some of my friends, as well as his, say that he is engaged to this young lady, but he has never as much as mentioned her name to me.

Now, do you think it is proper for me to ask him to call again when he is leaving? And how shall I find out whether he is engaged or not? I think a good deal of him in a friendly way, as he treats me with so much respect, and I would dislike much to refuse his company, not knowing whether it is true or not of his engagement, but if I did know it was true I wouldn't think of going with him. Although I do not know the girl I do know what pain it would cause her. M. F. L."

HUSBAND IS UNREASONABLE

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am a married woman of 27. I have two children. I am living at a boarding house where there is a young man of 24. He passes remarks at the table such as, 'Your hair is fixed different this evening,' or 'You look nice in that dress.' The baby is quite taken up with him. This seems to make my husband jealous and he does not speak to the young man. Do you think this is a good cause for his jealousy?"

"AN ANXIOUS WIFE"

No, I think your husband is unreasonable, but as long as he takes the attitude that he does you better avoid the fellow as much as possible.

THE HASKIN LETTER

CARIBBEAN POLITICS

XX—FOREIGN INTERESTS IN COSTA RICA.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

SAN JOSE DE COSTA RICA, May 4.—No other country in Latin America is so thoroughly controlled by foreign interests as Costa Rica. It is often said that the country is a satrapy of the United Fruit company, and in some respects this is not so very far from the truth. That great corporation has developed the banana trade of the country until Costa Rica is as much dependent on the banana market for its prosperity, as Porto Rico is dependent on the sugar market. When it is recalled that the annual production of bananas amounts to nearly ten million bunches, that it is an industry which has been developed entirely by the United Fruit company, and that the industry is maintained almost entirely by it there seems to be just ground for the designation.

But the domination of the United Fruit company does not stop there. It with its allied interests practically built the railroads of the republic, and practically controls them today. Furthermore, Minor C. Keith, president of the United Fruit company, and head of the interests which have built the railroads, is practically the treasurer of the republic. Costa Rica for years has carried a heavy foreign debt. Time after time it defaulted in its interest and was put on the blacklist by the British Corporation of Foreign Bondholders. There were not funds enough to be had to meet the interest, much less to keep up a reasonable sinking fund.

Keith acted as Banker.

Finally it was agreed by the foreign bondholders that if the government of Costa Rica would permit Minor C. Keith to act as banker for the loan, which amounts to approximately eight million dollars, money would be furnished to satisfy the old bonds, new bonds being issued therefor, the new bonds to bear 4 per cent interest for 10 years from January 1, 1911, and 5 per cent interest from January 1, 1921, until redeemed. Money was advanced in addition to the amount necessary to take up the old bonds and all accumulated interest as to bring the new loan up to a total of approximately ten million dollars. The additional funds being provided for meeting the interest payments of the immediate future and for certain internal improvements.

In addition, Costa Rica negotiated another loan with French bankers in order to secure funds to pay off international obligations. The interest on these bonds was pledged to secure the French loan. But the Keith loan is the paramount one, and at least so long as this debt remains unpaid, Keith is a power to be reckoned with. But his connections in Costa Rica are such that he is perhaps more interested in its prosperity than any other man and this makes it certain that he will do nothing to place the republic on the back track.

Laborers Receive $1 Per Day.

The Costa Ricans like foreigners. They regard their stable government as being the product of the foreign invasion. The foreigner with capital is heartily welcome, because, they say, that with combination of foreign capital, foreign brains and native natural wealth, there is no way to prevent prosperity and growth.

In this attitude the Costa Rican seems to be wiser than his compatriots of the other countries of Central America. He admits that the foreigner is getting rich in Costa Rica. "But what if he is?" asks the Costa Rican. "Isn't he likewise making money for us?" Is he not bettering the condition of our labor as well as of our treasury?

When one goes out on the banana plantations and sees laborers getting $1 a day in good American gold for their work where once they got 25 cents, he feels that the Costa Rican's conclusion has some degree of reason back of it. The stimulation that the banana industry has given the country is in evidence on every hand, and though the big fruit company's sins may be as scarlet, and in some ways they must be if the half of what one hears is even approximately true, it must be credited with a measure of life peace and prosperity that obtains throughout the country.

The government of Costa Rica has not always enjoyed healthy financial conditions. If indeed its finances are sound today, in the early '70s the government was the victim of that same merciless foreign exploitation that characterized nearly all the Central American republics at that period. In 1871, it borrowed nearly $5,000,000, at least it gave its bonds for that amount, and got about $3,700,000 therefor. The full assets of the nation, even the national domain, were pledged as security for the debt, and the interest charged was 7 per cent on the face value of the loan.

The next year a loan of nearly $12,000,000 additional was negotiated, the republic getting 80 per cent for each dollar borrowed, and obligating itself to pay 7 per cent interest on the face value. The liquor tax, the coffee tax, and the net earnings of the railway were pledged to secure this loan. The government defaulted on both loans in 1874, and it was not until 1885 that things were adjusted again. And then it was Minor C. Keith who put the deal through. He persuaded the bondholders to accept new bonds in lieu of the old ones at the rate of 50 cents or the dollar, the interest on the new bonds to be 5 and 4 per cent instead of 7 per cent, as on the old ones.

Defaulted Again in 1895.

In spite of this concession, Costa Rica defaulted again in 1895, and again the interest was cut nearly in half. Again in 1901 it defaulted, and continued to default until 1911, when a new foreign loan was negotiated, and today the interest charges, with Keith as the banker of the pledged funds, are being met promptly, and the foreign bondholders council has expressed the hope that in a few years the heavy sacrifices that have been made by the bondholders, Costa Ricans will atone for its checkered financial past by promptly fulfilling its obligations in the future.

The government has enacted a comprehensive railway law that will at once protect the railroad builder and the nation. It provides that every railroad built under a concession shall become the property of the government in 99 years, and that all disputes between the government and the railroad builder must be settled in the courts of Costa Rica, and under its laws. No railroad concession shall constitute a monopoly and the government reserves the right to build or grant concessions for competing roads. All roads may be taken over by the government if it necessities or welfare demands it.

There are many companies of foreigners in Costa Rica who are engaged in exploiting lands and appealing to the small investors to come down here and buy farms. These advertisements are usually about on a par with those of a like nature in the United States. In the first place, they exaggerate the picture. They give all sorts of data that tend to make it appear that a man can make a fortune in a year or two. For instance, they may picture the profits of banana farming as being from $100 to $200 per acre a year; yet, the most experienced banana grower is satisfied if he can show a profit of $50 per acre. And it may be added that the superintendent of a banana farm of the United Fruit company who can show an average profit of that much per acre will get a "well-done" message from headquarters.

ADmits STEALING BICYCLE

Harry Stiner, aged 21, was arrested yesterday by Sheriff Birdsell and Detective Glavin, charged with stealing a bicycle.

The officers were returning from a trip in the Hall ranch, south of the city, when they met young Stiner walking, wheeling the bicycle. Seeing something suspicious, they asked him where he secured the wheel. He first said that he had bought it from a negro boy for $5 the night before, but on further questioning confessed that he stole it in Colorado City Saturday night. Stiner says he recently came here from Parkville, Mo., and was looking for work when caught. The owner of the bicycle has not been located by the Colorado City police.

RETURNS FROM OHIO MAY BE DELAYED BECAUSE OF COMPLICATED BALLOTS

Five Candidates in Field and Interest Running High in Today's Primary. Roosevelt, in Ending Campaign, Declares If There Is Any Compromise Candidate It Will Be Him. Says Rank and File of Party Will Control Chicago Convention

DENNISON, O., May 20.—The Roosevelt campaign in Ohio came to an end today. After he had delivered his speech the former president started for Oyster Bay, where he expects to be when the returns from the Ohio primaries come in tomorrow.

Colonel Roosevelt emphasized several points in his speech. He said first that there would be no compromise in the selection of a Republican candidate for president so far as he was concerned.

"I'll name the compromise candidate," he went on; "he will be me. I'll name the compromise platform; it will be our platform."

He also called attention to the part the Republican national committee will play in determining the makeup of the Chicago convention. He declared that the "bosses" would not be permitted to take control.

"Mr. Taft recently has announced an expectation of a large primary vote. Because of the complicated ballots, returns are not expected until late. The polls will be open from 8.30 o'clock in the morning until the same hour in the evening.

The national committee's chief function now is to determine what delegates are originally elected, and when our opponents talk of the friends of constitutional government controlling the convention through that committee, they mean it is the bosses and their representatives who will have the say whether the delegates elected by the majority of the Republicans are to be seated or not.

"I serve notice on them that the people, the rank and file of the Republican party, will be the masters and not the servants of the men they have chosen to represent them; that we will control the national convention, and from now on, will control our legislation in state and nation."

Since Colonel Roosevelt came into Ohio a week ago he has made nearly 50 speeches. He has traveled 1,749 miles within the borders of the state. He showed no signs of fatigue tonight and his voice, which gave him some trouble on Saturday, was in better condition.

Large Primary Vote Expected.
COLUMBUS, May 20.—Ohio tonight tested from the strain of the last two weeks campaign during which four presidential candidates bombarded the state and is ready for tomorrow's primaries.

The presidential preference primaries in Ohio, the home of two of the candidates, are considered the crux of an unusual political situation.

Activity in the Ohio campaign is said to be without precedent. It was in this state that Colonel Roosevelt first presented the platform upon which he is basing his fight.

Woodrow Wilson, Governor Harmon's opponent did not enter the state. Harmon's serious antagonism has been William J. Bryan, who, speaking for Ohio Progressives, Democratic League, has attacked the governor and defied Wilson's nomination.

Senator La Follette, after opening the fight in the state, returned last Friday night and made three speeches in support of his cause. Governor Harmon limited his campaigning to five night addresses, which were given over to answering Mr. Bryan.

President Taft and Governor Harmon went to their homes in Cincinnati today. The president will depart tomorrow for Washington and Governor Harmon will hear the returns at his home. Colonel Roosevelt and Senator La Follette completed their campaigns, the one departing for the east last night and the other for the west.

Supporters of all factions in the five-county region are expected to be in the Pikes Peak region today.

In regard to an article published yesterday afternoon stating that Pikes Peak region day may not be held, the Chamber of Commerce committee in charge of the day last night issued the following statement:

The article in last night's Telegraph was not authorized by the Chamber of Commerce. The petition in opposition referred to as containing 30 signatures actually contained 18 names, and was presented to the board of directors who called a special meeting for last Friday evening. Notice of the meeting was sent to every merchant and scenic attraction member of the Chamber of Commerce.

"At this meeting only one member opposed the plan of closing, and after hearing the many arguments of those favoring the plan his objections were withdrawn.

"This meeting unanimously passed a motion endorsing Pikes Peak Region day, on the same plan as was held last year, and also the appointing of a committee to call on the objecting merchants and ascertain their intentions for that day.

"The committee found that of the 18 people who protested, seven had previously signed a statement favoring the plan. Practically all on the list were men and withdrew their objections. The committee has not completed its work and a full report will be made soon.

CUBAN NEGROES IN CONSPIRACY PREPARED TO RISE UP IN REBELLION

Situation So Grave That Government Sends Out Strong Force of Troops

HAYANA, May 20.—There is no room for doubt tonight in the existence of a negro conspiracy extending to all the provinces of the island, with the apparent intention of taking up arms against the government today, which was the tenth anniversary of Cuban independence.

The negroes appear to have been roused to rebellion by the denial of what seems to them their just reward for services rendered in the war of independence, in which they constituted a great proportion of the Cuban forces.

The feeling against the government has been intensified by a law denying the negroes the right to organize a political party.

The principal trouble now is near Sagua la Grande, in Santa Clara province, and Cruces, where two armed parties are operating and in Oriente province where several bands are converging on Guantanamo City with the apparent purpose of making a display of force. The rural guard succeeded in dispersing one small party and capturing two others.

The situation is considered sufficiently grave for the government to dispatch a column of 1,200 men from Camp Columbia composed of cavalry and infantry with field and machine guns, bound for Santa Clara and Oriente provinces.

The secretary of the interior, Honor Bru, said there was doubt about the widespread racial conspiracy which the government is determined to deal with drastically but that up to the present the only danger points are Santa Clara and Oriente.

Sensational Stories of Alleged Killing by Queen of Belgium Create Wrath

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 20.—A semi-official communication dealing with alleged false reports as to the private life of the royal family was issued today in the following terms:

"Since a recent garden party held at Laeken, calumnious rumors have been put in circulation concerning the private life of the royal family. It was even declared that on the day of the garden party the queen of the Belgians surprised King Albert in the company of a lady of the chamber and that the queen shot the woman dead with a revolver.

"King Albert had no knowledge of these reports, although for several days military officers attached to the court had learned of them by telephone calls both from Belgium and abroad. After consultation it was decided to acquaint the king with the report. His majesty was astonished and very indignant. He decided to prosecute the authors of the reports and all persons repeating them.

"Criminal proceedings were instituted this afternoon before the king's procurator."

The newspaper Le Peuple understands that three persons, whose names are not given, are being prosecuted for circulating the slanders which take three forms.

According to the first, the queen surprised the king in the company of a chambermaid and killed the latter. The incident has produced a profound sensation here and public opinion is greatly wrought up over the slanders and their author.

SENATOR ROOT TO BE TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

Accepts Offer to Preside at Republican National Convention Next Month.

CHICAGO, May 20.—U. S. Senator Elihu Root today announced United States Senator Elihu Root as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention.

The naming of Senator Root as temporary chairman of the convention was announced after a meeting of the national committee on arrangements last Saturday. The temporary chairmanship had been offered to him. The meeting, presided over by the committee, decided that the selection had been left to the hands of Colonel Roosevelt. It was common gossip that Senator Root would be acceptable to both the Taft and the Roosevelt forces.

"I just received the acceptance of the nomination," Senator Root said.

U. S. LIGHTHOUSE BOAT AT MERCY OF WAVES

CORDOVA, Alaska, May 20.—The United States lighthouse tender, Armenia, is adrift near Cape Hinchinbrook and is being pounded to pieces by the waves. The 27-year-old ship, which was built in 1885, was abandoned by the crew of 24 men and one survivor of the crew of the lost bark, Haydn Brown, was taken off by the steamship Admiral Sampson, which picked up the wireless distress signals.

The Admiral Sampson, which is bringing the rescued men to Cordova, reported the loss of the Armenia by wireless and gave the additional information that the Armenia had solved the fate of the Haydn Brown, which was cut adrift by a big Pioneer during a terrific storm in Prince William Sound, May 10.

The Haydn Brown, which was supposed to have foundered at once drifted ashore on Montague Island, in the entrance to the sound May 12. Only two of the eight men aboard the bark reached shore and one died of exposure the next day. August Palmer, the lone survivor, lived on canned beef until picked up by the Armenia.

The complete program of the Men and Religion movement, which has been in operation for many months, was closed last night at the closing session of the convention of the First Presbyterian church in Colorado Springs. The church is a member of the National Council of the American Baptist churches.

Colonel Roosevelt, who was present, said that the movement was a success and that the church was a success. He said that the church was a success and that the church was a success.

The former Baptist clergyman, confessed murderer of Avis Linnell, of Hyannis, his one-time sweetheart, was outwardly calm when he entered the death chamber, and he maintained his composure while the straps and electrodes were being adjusted as he sat in the electric chair.

Before he walked to the feet of the executioner, he bowed his head and then he closed his eyes and said that he was a Christian and that he was a Christian.

"I Am Willing to Die," he said. "I am willing to die for my God and my country. I am willing to die for my God and my country. I am willing to die for my God and my country."

When the officials and witnesses of the execution entered the death chamber, they found the prisoner sitting upright and looking calm. He was looking at the officials and witnesses and looking at the officials and witnesses.

Majority Report

Clearing Lorimer

Given to Senate

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Why Senator Lorimer should be permitted to retain his seat in the senate was set forth today by the majority of the senate special committee in their report to the senate. It was submitted by Chairman Dillingham and had the approval of Senators Gurnea and Jones, Republicans, and Fletcher and Johnston of Alabama, Democrats. The majority took the position that the senate having once "solemnly and deliberately" passed on the charges against Senator Lorimer he should be permitted to retain his seat unless new and convincing evidence had been produced establishing corruption in his conduct. Absolutely no new and substantial evidence had been produced at the re-investigation, the majority said, and consequently they declared the rules of justice required the former judgment of the senate upholding Mr. Lorimer to stand.

The report dealt at length with the evidence in an endeavor to show nothing substantial had been produced against Senator Lorimer. It also reviewed the legal authorities to show that the first investigation of the senate should be taken as final.

The controlling factor in the action of the senate in reopening the case, so the majority said, was either raised by or through the efforts of Edward Hines, the Chicago lumberman to cure the election of Senator Lorimer.

Rejects Funk's Testimony.

The majority rejected the version Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, gave of a conversation he held with Mr. Hines just after Senator Lorimer's election. It was during this conversation that Funk claimed Hines asked for a $10,000 contribution to a $100,000 Lorimer fund. The majority said that Mr. Funk's testimony stood uncorroborated either by other witnesses or by any circumstances.

"In view of the fact that it was known to Mr. Hines," the report said, "that the relations existing between the officers of the International Harvester company and Mr. Lorimer were those of opponents rather than friends it is improbable that he would seek from Mr. Funk the representative of that corporation, a contribution to aid in the election of Mr. Lorimer."

In discussing Mr. Funk's testimony that he had heard reports of Mr. Hines' activities at Springfield, the majority declared that such reports must have had birth in Mr. Funk's imagination.

Comment was passed on the fact that for many months H. H. Kohlhaas, editor of the Chicago Record-Herald, James Keeley, editor of the Chicago Tribune, Victor F. Lawson, owner of the Chicago News, and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt knew of Mr. Funk's version and none saw fit to bring the information to the attention of any person connected with any investigation.

ARE MARRIED ON TRAIN

San Francisco Couple Take Novel Means to Escape "Fuss" of Formal Ceremony.

MEDFORD, Ore., May 20.—While northbound Southern Pacific train No. 14 was speeding between Medford and Gold Ray yesterday, Mrs. Helena Mary Fife and William E. Keller of San Francisco were married. The ceremony was performed in the private car of J. W. McClymont of San Francisco, with Mr. McClymont acting as best man and Mrs. McClymont as matron of honor. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. F. Shields of this city. The license and marriage certificate were secured by telegraph, and the event was as correct and well appointed as the most formal church wedding.

RELAY ON EXPERT ACCOUNTANTS.

Expert accountants employed by the committee, it was stated, had failed to find any evidence in the books of Edward Hines or Edward Tilden of connection with a Lorimer election fund. The committee next considered testimony of William M. Burgess of Duluth, Minn., that C. F. Wiebe, brother-in-law of Mr. Hines had stated in a smoking room of a sleeping car that he had contributed $10,000 to a Lorimer election fund. The report stated: "With a convincing array of evidence in denial of all the facts contained in Mr. Burgess' testimony and in view of the improbability that a man of Mr. Wiebe's intelligence and business experience should in a public place and to an utter stranger would have confessed to having part in an infamous proceeding, this committee cannot do otherwise than discard the testimony of Mr. Burgess as proof of any facts alleged."

TWO BODIES RECOVERED

CHICAGO, May 20.—Bodies of two of the five persons who were drowned today when an automobile plunged through an open draw at Ninety-second street and the Calumet river, were recovered today and tonight. One body is that of Anna Mahoney and the other is thought, from letters found in the clothing, to be that of John Boyd.

Two other victims are Florence Mahoney, a sister of Anna, and John W. Buchanan, chairman of the car. The car belonged to Mrs. C. P. Spaulding, Buchanan's employer, and had been borrowed by him without her permission to take his friends riding.

All of the known occupants of the car were residents of Chicago.

CALLS WHITE'S STORY FABRICATION.

The sensational account by former State Representative Charles A. White of receiving Lorimer election money was pronounced "as a pure fabrication, so far as it relates to the election of Senator Lorimer."

The committee advanced the theory that instead of Senator Daniel W. Holtzlaw having been paid $2,500 for having voted for Lorimer it might have been paid by liquor interests to defray his election expenses although posing as a "dry."

"From a consideration of all the circumstances," it was explained, "the committee is satisfied that Holtzlaw was the candidate of the liquor interests in his senatorial district and was elected by them, that he was subjected to large campaign expenses and money being dearer to him than his reputation, he felt convinced that he would not be likely to incur such expenses unless assured that he would be reimbursed."

"It is conceded that liquor legislation has been one of the prominent and continuing elements in the Illinois general assembly and John Broderick being a saloon keeper in the city of Chicago, was naturally a representative of the liquor interests and money passing from him to Holtzlaw is a feature of the case so suggestive in the absence of any other consideration for its payment as to raise a strong presumption at least that its payment had been

How American Women May Keep Faces Young

"The American smart woman ages early, far earlier than the English woman," says Christian Miller, P. C. I., the famous English health expert. She adds that our climate "sooner kills than it cures" and that our over-exerted ourselves and grow old before we know it. That same exhilarating air dries the skin. The skin that lacks moisture grows pale and withered looking and soon forms wrinkles.

"The American complexion is best kept by applying pure mercurized wax, which causes the faded lifeless cuticle to flake off in minute particles, a little each day until the fresh, young skin beneath is whole in evidence."

Every druggist has this wax; one ounce is sufficient. Spread on at night like cold cream washing it off next morning.

"It is a mistake to use a cold cream powder exfoliate in a half pint with hazel; bath the face in this immediately every wrinkle is affected even the deeper lines. Both treatments are remarkable facial rejuvenators."

Corruption Funds Common.

Taken altogether, the committee said the testimony indicated to it that Mr. Lorimer's election was the result of a corrupt use of money. It dwelt upon the statement that not a single witness had reflected upon Senator Lorimer personally, and that no testimony existed as to a single discreet remark or improper action on his part.

As to general corruption funds in the Illinois legislature, it was said that "without definite proof of the existence of a specific jackpot the committee can only report that a general belief exists among many classes that corruption funds have been more or less common in connection with legislation in that state."

The minority reported that the second investigation conclusively established that at least 10 of the votes cast for Lorimer were corrupt and that his election therefore was invalid. The minority report was signed by Senators Keim and Lea, Democrats, and Kenyon, Republican.

FULL PROGRAM

We do with a great corporation like the United States Steel company, which has created a mountain of gold from a vast volume of water. In the next generation the automatic control of industry will be as hateful as regarded as ever black slavery was. Every year we kill and maim as many men on account of car-bombing as were killed and maimed in the Civil war.

The great danger of the evils in our industrial conditions today lie in the harm that they do to the family and the home. In this we will find the remedy, for men will recognize them and rise to their overthrow.

Talk on Boys' Work

J. C. Arnold, secretary of the Denver Y. M. C. A. boys' department, outlined a plan of Boys' Work. He said "The church is reaching only 10 per cent of the boys and girls of Sunday school age and the biggest job of the church is to find men who will centralize their energies in leadership. The better work of the Sunday school can be done by putting in youths as leaders of younger boys and men of older boys, also by organizing the leaders in training classes and by doing all possible for their physical development."

J. M. Torrey, secretary of the movement in Denver spoke briefly on the importance of the campaign in Colorado Springs and explained the recommendations endorsed by the convention.

Dr. P. T. Bayley of Denver leader of Bible study said that "the Bible is most used and most abused because of haphazard study. We should use the same common sense in reading it as in the study of any literature, and consider the time in which it was written and its application to present-day principles."

Dr. Samuel Garvin took occasion to express the thanks of the committee to the Men and Religion movement for the generous and effective publicity given the movement by the press of Colorado Springs. He said "There is no place in the country where we have had so accurate and careful reports of our meetings with no attempt to distort the facts."

als were captured. Barria was immediately executed as a deserter from the federal army.

The federals rushed into Guadalupe at daybreak. The 23 rebels there fled. One was killed and four were caught. The others escaped to Juarez. The federals barricaded Guadalupe for a fight, but as the Mexican federal officials are anxious to avoid a battle near the American line, their forces, instead of waiting at Guadalupe, probably will go out to meet the rebels during the night. It is estimated that about 600 men may be engaged on both sides.

Guadalupe is the town into which Francisco Madero crossed into Mexico a year ago to start the revolution which culminated in his election to the presidency of Mexico. The Mexican government, it is said, will attempt to make Guadalupe a regular port of entry through which it could conveniently transport munitions of war to its troops in the north. It is not considered likely that any movement will be made for several days to retake Juarez, as the federals are awaiting the arrival from the west of a column under Captain Obregon expected to form a junction behind Juarez.

Canales and his men were sent southwestward to flank the federals when the battle of Conojow was fought a week ago, and it is believed their retreat was cut off by federal columns advancing southward. Canales continued, however, to harass the federals, his object being to reach the rear of the federal government forces and threaten Torreón. With Canales were three Americans, Samuel Drebbin of Philadelphia, and Tracy Richardson, who operate a pair of machine guns, and Homer Scott, an El Paso photographer.

It is feared that the forces of Canales were badly cut up.

Though the skirmishing of yesterday the rebels fighting line at Asunso, should they attempt to go through the rebel line by rail it is thought the will run the risk of being defeated. If they retreat at Escalon using that station as a base they will be forced to haul their heavy artillery over a great stretch of sandy desert and face a rebel front extended over several miles which the defenders have occupied for many weeks and in which they are thoroughly entrenched and fortified.

STEWART FOR GOVERNOR

MR. PHILIP B. STEWART'S announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor, on a Progressive platform, is the most gratifying thing that has happened in the political history of Colorado for several years. It is made in response to a genuine demand voiced by honest-minded, clear-thinking Republicans in every part of the State, and it will appeal strongly not only to Republicans but to thousands of Democrats and people of independent political judgment everywhere who have long been looking for the right man to lead the fight for the regeneration of Colorado.

Mr. Stewart is well-known throughout the State, and everybody who knows him, even by reputation, will recognize him as in every respect the man for the place. His announcement of his willingness to make the race inspires renewed confidence and zeal in every sincere believer in the cause of clean politics and good government.

Mr. Stewart's letter sounds the keynote of the coming contest. "Fundamentally, our campaign is for the purpose of restoring to Republicans their party, and to the people their state government." This sentence is in itself a platform which any good citizen can unhesitatingly endorse. Nobody who possesses the slightest familiarity with the political affairs of this State can say that either the State administration or the political parties are controlled by the people. Both the Republican and Democratic parties are dominated and directed by a bi-partisan gang in Denver which receives its orders from "big business."

These men elect the legislatures which in turn elect our United States Senators. They elect Governors and Congressmen. They control the government of Denver and plunder the people at will. They have placed vicious laws on the statute books and denied the people just laws for which there is urgent need. They have debauched the politics of the State until all over the nation the name of Simon Guggenheim is accepted as a sufficiently descriptive synonym for the degradation to which Colorado has sunk.

For years the people have accepted these conditions under protest. They have struggled against them, but their fight has been ineffective chiefly for want of proper leadership. Now the turning point has been reached. In at least half of the counties of Colorado there are well-organized groups of Progressive Republicans who are either already in control of their local party organizations or else are in a position to win control in the coming campaign. The Progressive movement has grown in strength and numbers until now nothing is needed to bring it to victory except the leadership of a man of the first order.

In Philip B. Stewart the party based on sound principles has found such a leader. He has been a citizen of Colorado for twelve years, and possesses an intimate acquaintance with the business

character and ability, his integrity and his unswerving devotion to principle, together with his wide acquaintance and popularity, will enlist larger support than could be commanded by any other candidate in either party.

This extract from Mr. Stewart's letter may be accepted as the platform on which he will make his campaign:

1. An amendment to the present primary law by which party assemblies or conventions shall be abolished.
2. A stringent, comprehensive, corrupt practices act.
3. The nonpartisan election of all judges, candidates for these judicial offices to appear on the ballot without party designation, and their election to occur at times independent of other political campaigns. We have failed to obtain high ideals of character, equipment and independence in judicial offices. It is a gain toward better conditions if we take this first step and force an undivided public attention at the time of selection of judges and free these officials from party allegiance and natural party obligations.
4. A public utilities commission, vested with comprehensive powers to regulate public service and transportation corporations, included among which should be:
(a) The power to limit capitalization and bonded indebtedness.
(b) Power to regulate rates and service.
(c) Power to prohibit passes, franchises, rebates and all favorites.
5. The recall of all elective officials and members of important commissions who hold office by appointment.
6. A presidential preference primary law.
7. The reapportionment of legislative districts in the state, based upon an equitable distribution of population.
8. Another subject urgently demanding just settlement is the question of injuries and death suffered by workmen in their employment. Existing conditions with regard to employers' liability and compensation for workmen's injuries are so unjust that there should be remedial action.

This is a list of the measures that Colorado most needs, and without which its political rehabilitation cannot be accomplished. Without them the bosses cannot be finally overthrown. They are essential to the welfare of the State, and in the campaign just beginning they ought to be accepted by every good citizen as his cardinal articles of political faith.

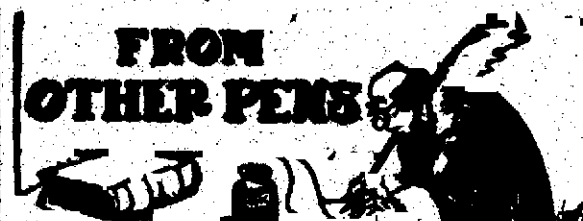

REGARDLESS OF THE COST.
From the Mount Carroll Democrat.
The Savanna baseball boys were so well pleased with the unpinning of Lew Becker that they took him to the restaurant and bought his supper after the game.

SPEAKING OF COLOR.
From the Chicago Tribune.
Speaking of color, not names, there is Mrs. Violet Pinky, White of Brown Town, Green county, Wisconsin.

QUITE NATURAL.
From the Waukegan Sun.
A thorough typographical error it was stated last evening that Mrs. John Hale had her husband arrested on a charge of having beaten her. The named should have been given as John Hale of Winthrop Harbor and it was quite natural that friends of Postmaster John Hale of North Chicago should think it was him that was meant.

FROM OTHER PENS.
AN OLD IDEA REVIVED.
From the Pittsburgh Dispatch.
It has been a score of years or more since the enthusiasm passed on their watches and began practicing on the idea. Now it is reported about to obtain official recognition in France, where it is to be adopted in the government services and on the state-owned railroads. The railroad argument based on the avoidance of confusion between a. m. and p. m. trains is, of course, the one that most readily appeals. Anything that may tend to make the ordinary railroad schedule intelligible to the occasional traveler is not to be lightly overlooked. With the 24-hour standard it would be possible to ascertain at a glance whether you arrived at your destination in the small hours of the morning or in the middle of the afternoon, not infrequently quite a consideration if the destination happens to be a place where the population retires with the chickens.

It is very appropriate that France should be the pioneer in this reform. A nation that has its eye not only on the future but also on the past, and that has been for the months of the year and the days of the week is probably better qualified to experiment with the 24-hour clock than any other. That experience was, of course, made in times of less rapid international intercourse than the present, and when France was isolated by Carlyle's "Cimmerian darkness" from the rest of the world; but the ability to detach themselves then exhibited may still survive sufficiently in the present generation to enable them to run their affairs by 24-hour clocks while the rest of us stick steadfastly to a. m. and p. m. until we see how they make out.

PLAYING GOLF.
Dr. W. H. Evans in the Chicago Tribune.
A while ago, a confused correspondent wrote me: "I don't know what to do between one group of advisers who tell us that we ought to follow our instincts and eat what we please and when we please." The fact is that "what is one man's meat is another man's poison," and what one man would starve on would fatten another. After individual peculiarities have been allowed for, there remains the question of work. The more a man works the more he should eat.

For the man who is going to sit down to his desk at 9 o'clock and stay there until 5, using few muscles, and those mildly and leisurely, a near breakfast of near food is proper. Man is more than half muscle and when he does no muscle work is not entitled to more than half eat.

Mr. Stewart is a man of many talents. He is a citizen of Colorado for twelve years, and possesses of fat and whose artery walls are pretty thick. On the one hand, this group of people could not play intense. On the other, they will not botanize because it has no competitive features—is not intense enough. They need fresh, clean air and the smell of grass. They need long walks.

They need just that momentary all-over muscle tension of "driving," the unrestrained muscle action of "putting," and the community muscle action of "hitting." They need to tighten the strings that they may loosen the business strings for all the strings cannot be slack at the same time. They are not built that way—the keyboard would fall to pieces.

The Fountain Pen

By WALT MASON.
The fountain pen is useful to all our human tribes; it's better than the gooseflesh quill used by ancient scribes. It's bought by Christmas shoppers to give to Uncle Jack, so he can push a stopper down in a bottle's neck. I've bought about a dozen at Jimpon's notion store, and uncle, aunt and cousin gave me as many more; and if I do not lose them, they are a boon, you'd think; but when I want to use them they're always out of ink. And if some ink still lingers inside the blamed machine, it gets upon my fingers and stains me red or green. If I am in a hurry, it reminds my bosom then; there's nothing else can worry me like a fountain pen! I twist it and I shake it, and turn the "flying around," and then get mad and break it and stamp it in the ground. A fountain pen would please me, and fill me with delight; of trouble it would ease me if it would only write. The fountain pen is handy for pushing corks; I think; it surely is a dandy at splashing you with ink; it has a dozen features commending it to men, but no well-balanced creature would use it as a pen!

The average man is the best type; the genius is a freak.

How stubborn men are in refusing to accept your clear, convincing arguments!

When a man falls in being wise, he attempts sarcasm; then, lacking success in that, he becomes a humorist.

Business men, as well as working men, are working shorter hours, although we are accomplishing more. It is commendable, but it reduces the opposition of the men willing to work ten hours.

If a woman makes $15 a week, people say: "Isn't she grand!" But a man must make more than that if he hopes to attract general comment.

There is nothing more pitiful than the man who has responsibilities he is unable to meet successfully.

Every man likes the word "Progressive," although he may not be able to do anything with it beyond the talk.

Nature asks nothing of you except that you hurry along, and get out of the way when you can't hurry along fast enough.

It is a woman's duty to be good looking.

Two Points of View

By RUTH CAMERON.
"The minute I get to New York I always feel shabby, no matter how well dressed I felt before," said a woman from a less metropolitan city who sometimes goes to New York. "I declare it spoils my pleasure. I feel as if everybody was staring at my clothes."

"I never felt like that," answered another woman. "There are so many wonderful things to look at in New York that I never occurred to me that anyone would look at me."

Shy and self-conscious people sometimes write me to ask how they can overcome their misfortune. I hereby recommend them to these two women. Let them avoid the point of view of the first and try to get that of the second, and they will be on the high road to recovery.

Each of us, for himself, the center of the universe. That is a law of psychology. Even the most unselfish person cannot think of the world in any other way than that. Although he may wear himself out in the service of others, he must still think of this universe of service as built around himself. As I go through a railway station, or look about a trolley car, I am interested to realize this, that I am the center of a little universe of my own.

And yet there are people like the woman I first quoted, who are always fancying that they are in the center of other people's universe.

Don't worry about receiving too much attention from others. Unless you are signally beautiful or signally disfigured, you are in no such danger. Half the time when you think people are staring at you, they are only looking at you as they look at the trees, or the houses they pass, with entirely indifferent, half-seeing eyes.

I often think with amusement of a conversation I heard between two girls. One was a rather pretty girl, with a vanity out of all proportion to her pretensions to beauty. Said this girl with a simper: "My dear, is my hat on crooked, or is there anything the matter?" I've seen so many people staring at me that I know there must be something wrong."

I am sure it would have been evident to a babe in arms that she expected to be told that it was her charm which had made her the cynosure of so many eyes.

But the second young woman, who has a reputation for her frankness, ignored this bait and answered: "What made you think they were staring at you?"

"Why, I saw them, of course," explained the pretty one indignantly.

"Then you were staring at them just as much," triumphantly pointed out the blunt person. "And there wasn't anything wrong or remarkable about them, was there? People have to look at something. They can't walk along with their eyes closed. That's all it means. I wouldn't worry if I were you."

But the pretty young woman looked much less reassured when she heard this.

FIRST AID TO INJURED HEARTS

By Laura Jean Libbey

CAN LOVE HIT TWICE?

(Copyright, 1912, by Laura Jean Libbey)
The flower of love has been likened to a certain plant, which buds and blooms but once in a lifetime. Others tell us that even though the first blossom of love may have bloomed, lived its allotted time, then slowly cast from its heart its withered petals, with its ceasing to be, a new shoot of love may spring up while there is yet a pulsation of life in the root.

In other words, love may unfold a second time. Whether it will thrive to the same perfection as the first blossom of love depends upon the sunny influence which surrounds it.

The heart that has once known love yearns for it a second time.

"All the world loves a lover." Even the most cynical of people are drawn unaccountably into sympathy with a sweet and lovely woman and a manly man. It is sympathy which will cause the number root of love to blossom again in the heart. It is the strongest force of attraction that can exist between two people. Few can wonder that it might end in wedlock. Sympathy is the attraction which draws the world to the widow. Two "society girls" write me in part as follows:

"There is a scare in our town. One of our prettiest girls, whom every man seemed to fall in love with at sight, married a year ago. Then, but not until then, did the rest of us girls breathe freely. We had no chance of getting a marriageable beau. She monopolized them all. We hear she has just been widowed—lost her husband in an auto accident. Furthermore, she is coming back to live here. As a heartbroken widow will she be more attractive than before? We feel that the rest of us have no chance when she comes back."

One should not cry before one is hurt. There are widows who would not under any circumstances put another in the place of the one whom they have lost. It is but natural that the bird which has met with disaster in the outside world should fly back again to the home nest. She expects that love and pity will be there if any place on earth.

As a heartbroken widow would she be more attractive than before? We feel that the rest of us have no chance when she comes back."

ANSWERS
PARENTS SAY 10 O'CLOCK.
"Dear Miss Libbey: I am a young woman of 18 and of a wealthy family. My parents think that all my gentleman callers should leave by 10 o'clock in the evening. Generally I do not mind, but there is one young man of whom I think a great deal and with whom the time flies particularly fast. What may I do to convince my father that he is old-fashioned and that my lover and I should be allowed time and place for private confidences?"

ALMOST DIED OF NOT SEEING HIM.
"Dear Miss Libbey: I am desperately in love with a street car conductor. I have spoken to him many times, but that is as far as it goes. He has asked me for my name, but I only laughed and told him I have an X. I have tried to forget him, as I have not seen him for one month. During this time I almost died of not seeing him. Kindly tell me how I could show him how much I cared for him. REELA."

A MOTHERLESS GIRL.
"Dear Miss Libbey: I am a motherless girl of 18 with no one to ask advice. Of course I have several old lady friends in this and other towns, but I don't like to ask them advice. I met a young man six months ago and he proposed to me the first time he had a chance. He seemed just crazy to meet me—drove 20 miles the darkest night when he heard I was in town. He has told me many times he could not live without me, and he never saw a girl before he could trust. He came regularly to see me while there. Two weeks later I came home. He has written to me every day since and writes whether I write or not. I know I don't write that often, because I have all my household duties; sometimes it is a week before I write him. We are engaged to be married in a year. I love my home with papa and my brothers. He wanted to come to see me Christmas, but I wrote him papa was away, so he has planned to come later on. What I want to know is if he really loves me."

"I can never have confidence in any man till he is my husband. The people in his town say he is a flirt. He told me he had flirted with several girls, but he said they were flirts, too."

"Do you think there is such a thing as love at first sight?"

"GREEN EYES."
No, I don't think that there is such in the love at first sight theory. I can't tell. Perhaps the fellow loves you or not without knowing more about the matter. The fact that he rides 20 miles shows that he has some interest in you.

The fact that everything is new makes it a good place to buy commencement gifts this year.

THE HASKIN LETTER

CARRER IN POLITICS
XXI PROSPEROUS SALVADOR.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador, May 5.—Except Porto Rico, Salvador is the most densely populated country in the new world. If the United States had as many people to the square mile as Salvador it would have over 700,000,000 inhabitants. Salvador is also the smallest of all the American republics, having an area smaller than any one of a hundred large countries in the United States. It has another claim for distinction in that its import duties are probably the heaviest of any country in the world.

But with all its heavy taxes and its density of population, the people of Salvador seem comparatively prosperous and happy. It seems that there is a place for everybody. All of the women of the city gather there. The park is about the size of a city block, and there is a walk outside the low stone fence and one inside. Benches being arranged along both walks. A band gives a concert, and for hours husbands and wives and sweethearts take turns at promenading and at sitting on the benches and watching the passing show. The common folk must keep the walk outside the fence, while the elite monopolize the one inside.

As state before, the tariff duties in Salvador are very high. It costs more than five million dollars a year to run the little republic's government. The duties are levied largely on the basis of weight, a pound of barbed wire paying almost as much as a pound of the finest lace. There are duties piled on top of duties, and when they are all met the man who buys an imported article makes a very liberal contribution to the country's treasury. A barrel of flour costs $12 and a case of oil, worth $1 in the states, is worth $5 here. It is easy to understand why the people eat but little wheat bread and go to bed with the chickens.

Salvador feels itself under the necessity of maintaining a large army. As will be explained in a later letter, President Cabrera of Guatemala is a thorn in the flesh of Salvador, and the Salvadoran mothers quiet their children by telling them of the dreaded Guatemaltecos. Just as American mothers talk to their little ones about bogey men, Salvador tries to be ready at all times for the warning down of the barbarian host from the north, and so a large army is maintained. The standing army consists of 16,000 officers and men, and they are a well drilled force. In addition to this there is a sort of national guard which can be made ready on short notice, with about 12,000 officers and men. Then there is the unorganized militia.

Salvador keeps its regular army in the prime of condition, both as regards equipment and training, and the men are paid well and regularly. This is a heavy drain upon the finances of the country, the annual expense on this account being a million and a quarter dollars.

Every citizen over 18 years of age is not only entitled to vote, but is compelled to do so. Of course, the law, which makes voting compulsory is more honored in its breach than in its keeping, and so far as it affects the choice of a president it does not amount to a great deal. While there is a heavy drain upon the finances of the republic in the maintenance of the army, there is no attempt to evade the law concerning presidential succession, on the other hand the same tactics are used to choose successors there that sometimes are in vogue elsewhere.

At the present time the president of Salvador is Dr. Manuel E. Arana. He is a popular man in the republic and mixes with the people almost as freely as any private citizen. He was the family physician of the American minister, Major William Helmke, before being called to the presidency, and Major Helmke speaks very highly of him both as a man and as a ruler. ## HAS BEEN MADE LOCAL CLERGYMEN

Men of Integrity Selected for Novel Test of New Tonic.

VOCATION IS A STRENUOUS ONE

Opinion of These Men Will Be Made Public Shortly.

The specialists who are introducing the new tonic, "Tona Vita," in Colorado Springs, are anxious to put their medicine to a novel test by having a number of public men of unquestioned integrity pass judgment on the preparation. They have therefore selected the clergymen of the city and vicinity for this test, the results of which will be made public at the end of two weeks.

"We believe 'Tona Vita' is the greatest tonic ever sold to the public," declared one of the specialists in discussing the matter. "Many Colorado Springs people are learning this, but many more who are in a debilitated condition, as the result of the strain of modern city life, should know what a wonderful medicine we have, and how quickly it will restore them to health. In order to convince these half-sick, listless, debilitated people that our medicine is all we claim it to be, we have decided to submit the tonic to a body of men whose opinion or word, no one could doubt. I refer to the clergymen of this city, a large percentage of whom, as a result of their excessive nervous strain, both mental and physical, are unquestionably affected by the all-too-common complaint, nervous debility, the chief symptoms of which are stomach trouble, nervousness, depression of spirits, little vitality, headache, dull pain in the back, cold feet, dizzy spells, spots before the eyes, uneasy sleep, and poor appetite."

"'Tona Vita' is a remedy that should particularly appeal to the clergymen, as it is a permanent source of benefit acting as a nerve food and restoring the vigor a healthy system should always possess."

"We will gladly give, free of charge, to each and every clergyman in the city and vicinity, any quantity of our medicine that may be desired upon the condition, however, that at the end of two weeks we are given a frank statement of the results of the treatment. Clergymen desiring to accept this offer may do so by writing or calling personally upon us at the Robinson Drug Company, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 8 p. m."

CORNELL DIVORCE CASE IS DISMISSED BY COURT

After two witnesses had been examined one of whom was the father of the plaintiff, the divorce suit of Nannie Franque Cornell against John Cornell was dismissed by Judge J. E. Little in the county court yesterday. Judge Little declared that the evidence pointed to collusion between the parties to the suit. The costs of the case were assessed to the plaintiff.

Judge Little is determined that the ruinous of the supreme court regarding collusion in divorce actions are to be enforced in his court.

The supreme court has pointed out, said Judge Little, "that it is the duty of the courts to take notice of any collusion or attempted collusion between the parties in divorce causes. By collusion I mean any agreement entered into which would be a factor in the granting of a decree. If it appears from the evidence, pleadings, or from any source whatever, that collusion exists, it is the duty of the court to take up the matter and if the fact is discovered, throw the case out of court."

In the Cornell case he said, it appeared from the evidence that an agreement had been entered into that the defendant would not contest the suit and would drop his $5,000 suit against W. W. Ducus, his wife's father, for alienation of her affections, in consideration of his wife dropping all claim to alimony. This Judge Little declared, to clearly indicate collusion and he dismissed the case forthwith.

"GOING SOME" BY HAWLEY COMPANY, MAKES BIG HIT

"Going Some" was received with unstinted praise by all who witnessed last night's performance at the Opera house, and declared it to be "the one best laugh."

The story is built around the complications that arise over the misadventures that befall the members of two ranches in New Mexico where eastern people are visiting. J. Wallinforer Speed, as portrayed by James Hawley, is on his vacation with his trainer from Yale. The two have their troubles with the western cowboys, as well as the college girls from the east, who are visiting on the ranch. Rex Beach knew what he was talking about when he wrote "Going Some," for it looks good and plays well to the local westerner.

Hawley was at his best in the part of Speed. As the press agents often say, "he is a hit." In the part of "Larry," the trainer, the road attractions could not have offered a better artist in the role than that of Joe C. Berry. Berry did not know his lines word for word, but made the part "stand out" through the play. Miss Zelma Edwards and Miss Andra Alden are making friends fast with their clever work in the parts of Helen, the college girl from the east, and Miss Alden as Jeanne, the western girl, who, with her brother, owns the ranch around which the action of the play takes place. The cast is far above the average stock company. Much credit is due the scenic artist and stage director, Mr. Stanley, for the complete production offered last evening. In the past the first night was more or less "rugged," but not so this week. Taking it all in all, "Going Some" is well worth going to see.

MRS. BROKAW SORRY IF SHE'S BEEN "FOOLISH"

Husband, However, Thinks Wife's Object Is Only to Get Possession of Son

Although Mrs. Clarence Pierce Brokaw for the last two weeks has continually made most emphatic statements to representatives of the New York press that she always has been true and faithful to her husband and that she has never been guilty of improper conduct with other men, she now qualifies her statements.

In a special delivery letter to Brokaw's mother, Mrs. Theodore P. Brokaw of 908 East Cameron street, this city, received yesterday morning, she answers her husband's accusations of improper conduct with Leon Sancier of New York city by saying:

"If I have been foolish (foolish was heavily underscored) at times—well, we all have done things sometime in life we are sorry for. The letter was a plea to her mother-in-law, with whom she has not been on good terms for several years, to either send her husband back to her or to permit her to come to Colorado Springs and live with him, saying 'she is heartbroken over the awful shock,' and promising 'to do her utmost to try to do her duty to both her husband and her baby boy.'"

In a special delivery letter to her husband, also received yesterday morning, Mrs. Brokaw says: "God God's sake come back to me or let me come out to you. I will do anything you wish me to and we will commence life anew. I am almost crazy with grief and heartache, and it seems as though I cannot bear it much longer. How could you do this wrong to me? I have just learned that you are suing me for a divorce. How can you in justice do such a thing? Please wire me and tell me you and my boy are coming back, because you know if you separate me from my darling boy I care not whether I live or die."

They have started off on a new tact," commented Brokaw after reading the letters. "Doesn't sound much like the statements they have been giving out to New York reporters, does it? First they call me a contemptible cur and a coward, and say they will regain the custody of the boy at any hazard. Now my wife writes such letters as that!"

"I believe I see her game, though. She wants to come out here or get me back there so she can get the boy—then I am helpless. She will never do it."

Last night Brokaw took his son, Buster, to headquarters so that the local police might secure a description of him. Brokaw believes that his wife's relatives in New York will try to kidnap the boy and thinks that, with the police on the lookout, they will not be able to get him out of town.

MARGARET ILLINGTON TIRED OF SOCIETY ROLES

Margaret Illington, who plays an engagement at the Opera house on Saturday, May 25, is determined to leave that field of society plays in which she has achieved a reputation.

"Almost ever since I can remember I have played drawing room characters," she said, "and now I am something different. The part of Maggie Schultz in 'The Price' is just wonderful. I think this play demands such a characterization that it takes me entirely out of myself. Of course, it is much harder work, but I like that. The last week I was at Daly's theater I gave 10 performances, the two extra ones being a matinee on New Year's day and a matinee given for professionals on Friday. Do you know that was the most wonderful matinee? The theater was crowded with prominent players and writers, and I have had so many nice letters from them that I feel that I could give one every day—that is, if I knew the same appreciation would be shown."

"It does not require so much art to appear in beautiful examples of the modiste's skill and go through scenes and emotional displays which are quite in line with the every day life of a woman. Any actress can do that sort of thing well, if she has any pleasant personality at all. But to make a strong picture of a part that is entirely from your own individuality, to make your work create literally this character in which your actual personality has no place and impress this character indelibly upon the minds of work which is worth while. It's delightful to have the assistance of well-made garments, but it is delightful to prove that I can make an appeal to my audience without such help."

"There are some points in the character of Maggie Schultz very similar to that of Marie Vossin in 'The Thief,' which I believe is the best part I have ever had with the exception of Maggie. I am sure the comparison of the two parts is interesting."

HELEN WARE IN "THE PRICE"

Helen Ware, in "The Price," is the attraction which will be seen at the Opera house Monday night, May 27.

She is under the management of Henry B. Harris, who was so well pleased with her interpretation of the role of Annie Jeffries in "The Third Degree" that he bestowed upon her last season the distinction and honors of stardom. This season, as Ethel Towner in "The Price," Miss Ware is said to justify clearly her elevation to the head of her own company. "The Price," which opened early in the season at the Hudson theater, New York, has only just started on tour. Its presentation will be made with the same cast and production as at the Hudson theater.

George Broadhurst, the author of "The Price," chose well when he based his story upon the relentlessness with which fate always pursues an erring woman. He paints with the sure touch of a master in stagecraft, an easily recognizable picture of a woman who is tortured in heart and soul by the ever-present knowledge of her guilt. He shows the constant fear of discovery of her secret, which torments her daily existence, and brings his principal characters to the crisis of their lives slowly but surely until suddenly they are confronted by the truth in all its nakedness.

In the climax of the third act Miss Ware is said to rise to sublime heights in emotional acting, and at the ending of the play she is always greeted with salvos of applause and compelled to take curtain call after curtain call.

Prominent in the supporting company are Harrison Hunter, Jessie "Belle" Margaret McWade, George W. Barnum, Gertrude Dalton and Robert H. Hudson.

Reputation Ruined by Policeman, Cincinnati Girl Ended Her Life

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 20.—Testimony before Coroner Coe in the case of Miss Hattie Ewing, who was found burned to death in her home at 1310 Central avenue, May 2, indicated that Miss Ewing had committed suicide.

William H. Glover of 131 Garfield place told of the girl's arrest on a loitering charge by Patrolman Peter Schaller, who was recently restored to the police force after a suspension of more than a year. Glover said she had said to him: "I would rather commit suicide than face the disgrace."

The whereabouts of the note referred to by Judge Ertke in a police court proceeding Tuesday remains a mystery. Coroner Coe asked all the firemen and police who had any connection with the case if they had seen such a note and all denied it. The only note found by the coroner was that left by Glover when he called to talk over the arrest with Miss Ewing on Sunday.

A number of witnesses testified that Miss Ewing bore a most excellent reputation. Glover said that a message reached him on April 27 stating that a Helen Hayes had been arrested. He did not know any one of that name, but answered the summons at the suggestion of his wife. He found Miss Ewing at the place of detention.

"I put up the necessary money to get her out," he testified, "and we left the city hall by the Eighth street entrance. She was confused and frightened out of her senses. She did not know which street was Central avenue. The following day at 7 o'clock she came to my home and we talked the matter over."

"She said that she had done some shopping at the Fair, and from there had visited a picture show on West Fifth avenue in order to see the picture of the Titanic disaster. As she was passing over Seventh street, near Elm, a man walked up to her and said, 'You are a nice looking girl. Are you going home?' She said she replied, 'I certainly am! go about your business.' The man, she said, turned away, saying something about it being 'kind of early.' With that a man in street attire stepped up to her and said, 'You are wanted.' I found out later that it was Patrolman Schaller.

Patrolman Schaller testified that he had been detailed to do plain clothes duty that night. He charged that Miss Ewing stopped three men before he interfered. He could not give any of the men's names or describe them.

Attorney H. C. Boelsinger testified that he knew Miss Ewing to be a woman of most excellent reputation. He had intended to appear for her at the trial in police court.

Robert Hill, 326 Laurel street, janitor of the building where Miss Ewing lived, testified that she was a young woman of exemplary habits and one of the most desirable tenants of the building.

Miss Pluma Clowin, a sister of Gibson City, Ind., testified as to the family history necessary for the coroner's record. She stated that if her sister had written a note she had never seen nor heard of it. A number of police and firemen testified as to the alarm of fire and the discovery of Miss Ewing's body.

who travels over Salvador just before election time sees posters nailed up on every wayside tree and building, in which the virtues of the several candidates for president are extolled. It is an approach to representative government that is lamentably absent in some of the other Caribbean republics.

Salvador—strictly speaking it is El Salvador—is progressive in many ways. In 1909 it looked as if an epidemic of smallpox would sweep the whole country. But the National Institute of Vaccination undertook to furnish the serum for a wholesale vaccination of the people and the result was that within a few months the last trace of the dreaded disease was wiped out of the republic. The government maintains a good department of agriculture, and is energetic in bringing to the people all the newest ideas in farming and mining. The traveler finds Salvador an attractive country to visit, and classes it next to Costa Rica as an example of what a people, liberated from the horror of continual revolution, may do for themselves.

"GOING SOME," A GREAT COMEDY, PRESENTED BY THE HAWLEY COMPANY

Last night marked the opening of the second week of summer stock at the Opera house, when James Hawley and Garrick Players were seen in Rex Beach's great comedy success, "Going Some."

Two seasons ago this comedy was presented in all the leading theaters throughout the east and west, at a top scale of prices. It was not seen here at the time, playing the Broadway theater, Denver. To say the least, it is one of the funniest comedies ever offered in Colorado Springs.

Mr. Hawley as J. Wallingford Speed, the "would-be" runner from Yale, is a scoundrel from the time the curtain goes up on the first act until the fall of the last. "Jimmy" Hawley has worked in many comedy roles while playing different engagements at the Opera house, but the role of Speed in this week's bill is doubtless the best impersonation he has been seen in here.

Miss Zelma Edwards and Miss Audra Allen, both portrayed their respective roles in a manner more than pleasing to last night's audience. Both are winning many friends by their artistic work. Miss Fannie Hammond and Miss Kate Stearns were seen at their best. Their work reaches across the footlights.

A BLOOD MEDICINE WITHOUT ALCOHOL

Recently it has been definitely proven by experiments on animals that alcohol lowers the germicidal power of the body and that alcohol paralyzes the white corpuscles of the blood and renders them unable to take up and destroy disease germs. Disease germs cause the death of over one-half of the human race.

A blood medicine, made entirely without alcohol, which is a pure glyceric extract of roots, such as Bloodroot, Queen's root, Golden Seal root, Mandrake and Stoe root, has been extensively sold by druggists for the past forty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity causes the use of rubbish which has accumulated during the winter.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, the founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, and a physician of large experience and practice, was the first to make up an ALTERNATIVE EXTRACT of roots, without a particle of alcohol or narcotic.

"It is with the greatest pleasure, that I write to let you know of the great benefit I received from the use of your medicine and treatment at home," writes Mrs. Wm. H. Hays, of Ladysmith, B. C. "I suffered for three years from a running sore. Consulted four doctors but they failed to heal or give relief. Finally I was told I was in consumption and would have to consult a specialist concerning my sex. But the doctor told me to put out before the wound would heal. A kind friend advised me to write to Dr. Pierce, which I did, and after seven days of the use of his medicine, the sore is healed, and I feel better than I have ever felt before. I am now with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and I shall always recommend your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" regulates liver and bowels.
